

Whisper

(aka Robbie)

I have 3 dogs and one day I really started noticing two of them would snuggle and play and the last one seemed like the awkward third wheel. I started looking at available dogs and fell in love with Robbie. After about a month of talking, planning, and working out logistics, my husband and I went on a 7-hour drive and brought him home.

Robbie, now Whisper, did proper introductions to his new doggy siblings and quickly decided he had a new playmate in a Ridgeback named Bubbles. No more awkward third wheel!!

Because Whisper is deaf, he has a long road ahead of him where he'll learn American Sign Language and lots of new tricks. He's already learned our signal for sit, "look at me" and come.

Whisper is our first ever deaf dog and the benefits of him being deaf is great! He's probably the only dog in existence not afraid of the vacuum!! It's been a learning experience with reflections off windows or mirrors, but it's been worth it. He's a very sweet dog and such a comedian.

My human makes a very comfy bed!

But this bed is comfy, too!
